About me:

I am a web developer with more than half a year experience. During this time, I learned to make myself Landing Page websites using various technologies. Every day I work on myself and learn new technologies, as well as hone my acquired skills. I quickly learn, and also quickly join the work, with a good team :)

I came to the world of IT not so long ago. I had an interest in technology since childhood, but there was no certainty that it was mine. At the end of 2018, I decided that I wanted to try myself in this direction. Unfortunately, I don't have money for expensive courses and I don't have any higher education in this area, so I am only counting on myself and my head. I am a cheerful, cheerful and sociable person, albeit a bit closed in myself. Pretty self-critical and honest, both with himself and with other people. I prefer full-time employment, because I believe that this experience will come only in the work on the project in a team where communication is needed.
